THE SPIRIT of Joe Martin is still in evidence in B. C. politics. An Exchange says: A strong combination is shaping itself against Hon. A. Henderson, the busy attorney-general in the hope of overthrowing the government by his defeat. In Westminster a meeting of prominent men have bound themselves to support Alderman L. R. Reed, a Conservative, or Dan Mann, the wealthy cannery, Liberal, in opposition to Mr. Henderson, when he presents himself for re-election. Which candidate will run against Mr. Henderson will be decided at a convention to be held shortly. Those wishing to see the government overthrown are ready to put up an unlimited election fund and Mr. Henderson's defeat is almost a foregone conclusion, a defeat which would be a death knell for the Selkirk-Compton administration.

SESSION NOTES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4, '99.

The discussion of the railway subsidy was taken up yesterday. The minister of railways intimated that Canada was only on the eve of railway development, and that in view of this a policy of safeguarding the public interest in the granting of subsidies had been adopted. This was to require the subsidized companies to carry mails and do government business generally in return for the subsidies received up to an amount equal to 3 per cent per year on the subsidy received. The average payment per mile by the government for carriage of mails by the existing railways was about $96 a mile. Had the arrangement which he now proposed been adopted in time that payment would have been saved. The government would control the location of lines and the rates over them. He drew particular attention to the provision to prevent amalgamation of the Ontario and Rainy river, the Canadian Northern and the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific with other roads. These were links in a scheme which was expected to finally become a competing railway from the Great lakes to the Pacific.

J. Ross Robertson, (independent conservative), made a strong speech against the Rainy river railway bonus being granted without sufficient guarantee of improved freight rates over it. He accused the government of unduly favoring Mackenzie & Mann and the C. P. R. of throwing down the public.

W. F. MacLean, conservative, spoke in favor of government ownership of railways; and pointed out that the provisions in the proposed resolutions for the protection of the public interest were ineffective. Practical amalgamation could not be prevented.

Hon. G. E. Foster and other conservatives abused the government for their large appropriations, but did not move either to strike out items or suggest amendments in protection of the public interest.

Richardson, (Lisgar), favored government ownership of railways as the most effective means of securing government control of rates. He showed what immense sums Canada had spent in aid to railways and how little control she now has over them. He drew special attention to the Rainy river railway. The governments of Ontario, Manitoba and the Dominion were giving practically $10,000 a mile to that road. There was a suggestion of an additional conditional bonus of $4,000 a mile from Manitoba. This would almost or altogether pay the cost of the road. If the public paid for the road the public should own it, and fix the rates over it in the public interest. He moved the following amendment to the pre-amble of the resolutions:

"That during the construction of the railways herein bonused all books, accounts and records showing the actual cost of construction shall be open to the inspection of the government, in order that if it may subsequently be determined by the government to acquire any or all of the railways subsidized they may be acquired with a knowledge of their actual cost and at a figure from which may be deducted the bonuses given by the government."

"That rates, both passenger and freight, shall at all times be subject to revision and control by the government-in-council, provided that whenever such rates produce a net earning of more than six per cent, on the actual cost of the road and equipment, less the amount of the subsidies received from any source, they shall be reduced so as to produce not more than six per cent, on such net cost." The purpose of the amendment was to declare the principle that railways should not be acquired to earn interests on money beyond the amount of private capital actually invested in them. At present they are required to earn interest on watered stock and on bonds issued not on actual cost, but on estimated earnings power. It is this overloading of the roads with obligations held by third parties that renders ineffective the general provisions that the government shall have the right to control and regulate rates.

Oliver seconded the amendment. He pointed out the great need of the manufacturers and traders of the east to secure railway rates to the west that would enable them to compete more effectively with the manufacturers and dealers of the western States for Northwest trade. The United States cities of Chicago and St. Paul had a much shorter haul than Toronto and Montreal and lower rates per mile, as well. Canada required a rate as much lower per mile as would put Montreal on even terms with Chicago for western trade. To bonus the Rainy river railway without attaining measurably, this object was to use the public money of Canada to block interprovincial trade.

McMullen accused Messrs. Richardson and Oliver of ingratitude in opposing the terms of the Rainy river grant, and declared that rates over the C. P. R. were lower than in any other civilized country; for which statement he was promptly called down.

Oster opposed subsidies generally. The premier declared that the provisions against amalgamation were the best the government could do to ensure competition.

Davis, (Saskatchewan), supported the subsidies as they stood, and opposed the amendment. He attacked Oster for his connection with the Qu'Appelle & Long lake railway.

The discussion was very lengthy and the disposition to talk away from the amendment was almost universal.

The minister of railways did not object altogether to the first part of the amendment as to account being given to the government of the cost of construction. He even offered a suggestion of his own to much the same effect provided the amendment was withdrawn. But he considered that the provision as to regulating the rates down to an earning of six per cent on the actual cost of construction less subsidies was impracticable, and having due regard to the public interest not reasonable. Earnings on capital should not be limited to six per cent in view of the possible loss during the first years of operation. To enforce this proposition would prevent the financing of railway enterprises.

The amendment was negatived in committee by a vote of 81 to 13. The mover and seconder were the only members on the liberal side who voted for it, as it was considered to question the railway policy of the government. Messrs. Foster and Haggart, leaders of the opposition, voted against it. Mr. Davin voted for it.

On the subsidy for an extension of the Phillipsburg railway in Missisquoi County, Quebec, Meigs, liberal, stated that this railway had been subsidized by the Dominion at $3,200 a mile and by the Quebec government at $4,000 a mile. It had been built four years, but had not yet been opened. The Montreal and Province line in the same county had been subsidized at $4,000 a mile by the Quebec government and had not been run for fourteen years. It had been requested by the Quebec government that the Dominion government should force the Phillipsburg Co. to operate their road.

The minister of railways could do nothing.

OTTAWA, Aug. 7, '99.

On Friday the minister of interior introduced a bill to give the government authority to release seed grain bondsmen from liability where the land of the person who received the grain is liable and is considered to be a sufficient security.

On the question of a subsidy to the Edmonton, Yukon & Pacific railway for 50 miles from South Edmonton to Edmonton and westerly towards the Jasper pass, Hon. Messrs. Foster and Haggart obstructed for a considerable time on the plea of information wanted. The chief stress of their objection was on the point that this was to form part of another transcontinental railway. After taking up an hour or two in purely obstructive tactics for the purpose of making it appear to the C. P. R. that they were protecting the interest of that company, or what is more likely trying to get the public to believe that they as champions of the C. P. R. were opposing Mann & Mackenzie's scheme, they declared that they had no objections whatever to the subsidy on its conditions, and it was agreed to without further discussion. The same members took a like course in the case of a proposed bonus to a railway extension into the Moose Mountain district. Because it was not specified that the C. P. R. was to get the benefit of the bonus they held the committee up for an unnecessary time. The leaders of the opposition lose no opportunity of trying to outbid the government for the favor of the C. P. R.

On the grant of $5,400 a mile for 80 miles of the Rainy river railway Oliver asked the minister if the fact that the railway from Winnipeg to Port Arthur, of which this was a part, would pass for some distance through the United States would not tell strongly against that control of rates which might otherwise have been hoped for under the government regulations.

The minister did not see that the power of regulation was affected by the passage of the railway for some distance through the States.

Oliver again asked if it would be possible for the government to reduce rates without regard to the rights of the holders of bonds whose issue had been authorized by the government.

The minister replied that there was no doubt that the government could reduce the rates irrespective of the rights of bondholders; but did not apprehend they would feel justified in doing so.

Richardson, in view of the statement by the minister that the government would not be justified in fixing rates regardless of the interests of bondholders, and in view also of the precedent in the case of the Crow's Nest Pass railway, moved that the following amendment be added to the subsidy clause:

"On the condition that the rate on wheat over that portion of the line subsidized by the government shall not exceed a per mileage rate based upon a gross rate of 8¢ per cwt. between Winnipeg and Port William, upon the throughline when completed, with proportionate rates upon all out-going and incoming freight according to classification."

Oliver seconded the amendment, which was defeated by 25 to 5, mover and seconder were the only members on the liberal side who stood up to be crutched for the amendment, although Messrs. Rutherford and Douglas did not vote against it, and desired to be counted for it. Messrs. Davis and Sifton voted against it. Foster and Haggart, leaders of the opposition voted against it. Davin, opposition, voted for it.

A million dollars was voted to the Quebec bridge. The bridge is to be 3,280 feet long, and 150 feet above high tide. Estimated cost $4,000,000. Resources of company, $300,000 stock, Dominion bonds $1,000,000, city bonds $500,000. Possible provincial government bonus.

SESSION NOTES.

On the general provisions of the subsidy resolutions the minister of railways explained to Mr. Oliver that for the last two years the government had inserted a clause in every contract giving a subsidy to a railway company bringing it within the right of the government to locate the stations on the line. It was intended to continue that policy. He also stated that where arrangements giving one road running powers over another were made the amount of subsidy was deducted from the cost of the original road before the calculations to arrive at the price to be paid for running powers were made. This had been done in the case of the application of the Nelson and Bedlington to run over a part of the C. N. P. line.

The grain inspection bill was passed on Saturday. This bill is designed chiefly to prevent the mixing of grades of wheat after inspection. By the mixing system the quality of Manitoba wheat had been so deteriorated in the British market that the price to the farmer had been injuriously affected. In the effort to prevent mixing the grades were more clearly defined than before and the points of inspection restricted. Provision was made for a reference of disputes between buyer and seller as to grades to a board of reference in Winnipeg. The intention was that this should apply as between dealers.

Davin moved that in case of a dispute as to grade between farmer and buyer samples should be sent to the reference board and if the grade was found to be as claimed by the farmer the buyer be required to pay the farmer the difference in value between the grade at which the grain was purchased and the grade in which it was placed by the reference board.

The minister of inland revenue opposed on the ground that the bill as it stood was the result of the joint efforts of dealers, farmers and experts generally who had compromised their differences in it. To introduce amendments now would be to re-open the whole question, and to break faith with these interests which had accepted the bill in its present form.

Wallace, (conservative), thought the amendment impracticable.

The minister of customs took the same view.

Oliver said that the proposed amendment touched the great point of dispute and difficulty regarding the grain trade. The great complaint of the farmers was that advantage was taken of them in grading their grain by the buyers. They could easily keep themselves posted as to the market value of the different grades of wheat, but they could not protect themselves against the arbitrary—and as they claimed—frequently unfair grading of the buyers. The amendment might not be public at the moment, and might be impracticable, but the principle was sound and dealt with the greatest difficulty met with by the farmers in securing the highest market price for their grain. If the western farmer had a free and open market for his grain the suggestion would not be necessary. The difficulty would be adjusted by free competition. But owing to the action of the house through one of its committees there was not free competition; there was not an open market. When parliament refused to allow the western farmer the protection of an open market, it should protect him by statute.

Douglas had no objection to the amendment, but thought its provisions were already covered by the bill.

The amendment was defeated by a large majority on both sides of the house. Oliver was the only member on the liberal side who voted for it.

There was a long debate on the question of increasing the salaries of the ministers of customs and inland revenue from $6,000 to $7,000 a year the same as the other ministers, the increase to begin on July 1st, '98.

McMullen and Wallace declared that ministers were over paid as compared with members. The members spent nearly half their time in Ottawa and were paid $1,000 while the ministers spent all their time and received $7,000. Wallace did not see that there was such a difference between the ability of the minister and the member as to justify the difference in salary.

Foster said that the payment to members was an indemnity—a repayment for expenses incurred—and was not intended as a salary, as their duties and responsibilities did not require them to give up their ordinary business. He was not in favor of an increase at present. The ministers salary was payment not only for his whole time, but for having given up his other business, and for the responsibilities of his position. He did not consider that the ministers were paid too much.

Sprole moved against the payment of the increase for the past year. McMullen was the only liberal who voted for Sprole's motion.

The full returns of the revenue and expenditure of the Dominion for the financial year ending June 30th last, have not yet been all accounted for, but they will be shown that the "surplus" for the year will be considerably larger than Mr. Fielding predicted in his budget speech. From the figures already to hand it is plain that there will be an excess of revenue over expenditure of over $5,000,000. During the month of July revenue to the amount of $1,303,511, which was out standing for the past fiscal year has been received, while an expenditure of $5,530,000 was made on payment of accounts for the same period. There is about half a million of revenue to hand from the Klondike, which has not been taken into account, and there are expenditures the accounts for which have not reached the finance department. The revenue so far for the year is $46,001,966, and the expenditure $39,812,672, leaving a surplus of $6,772,400, which, however, will be reduced to about $5,200,000 when all the accounts are closed. This applies to ordinary revenue. The expenditure for the year so far is about $2,500,000 greater than for 1898. The expenditure on capital account is $8,819,000, or nearly $3,500,000 over the preceding year.

PLEASED WITH THE COUNTRY.

The following report, from a number of delegates who have been overlooking the country, speaks for itself:

Edmonton, Aug. 7, '99.

We, the undersigned, gladly give our testimony as to the farming country round about Edmonton. We find a rich black soil which will and does throw up a crop of grain which cannot be surpassed in any country south of Alberta. We rather think there is no farming country where crops can be grown that will show up and yield like those grown in the vicinity of Edmonton. They are a wonder to the farmer of the more southern parts of Canada and the States. We also think it to be an excellent place for mixed farming, as nearly all grain crops and potatoes, likewise roots and garden products, grow to perfection, unsurpassed in any place. We also believe it to be well adapted for the raising of stock, as nearly all of the farmers have cattle. We found nearly all of the herds sleek and fat. We found most of the farmers in a very prosperous condition, and must say that prospects look very favorable for those now farming, as well as those who are starting.

We find Edmonton an industrious and thrifty town, up to date in every particular. It is a town now nearly a city in size and affords nearly all modern conveniences. Its stores are well supplied with every thing of any use to the farmers, miners and people of this thrifty town and country.

We can recommend the country to those wishing to benefit themselves by being industrious.

INDIAN MURDER TRIAL.

The trial of Payu and Nappa-Sousie, the two Indians from Lesser Slave lake charged with the killing of one of their number, was concluded on Saturday. The indictment had been changed from murder to manslaughter. The evidence was all in in the morning after which the counsel for the prisoners and prosecution addressed the jury. Mr. Beck, Q. C., giving a very able and comprehensive resume of the crown's case. After being charged by his lordship Justice Rouleau, the jury retired to consider the verdict and the court adjourned until five o'clock. Promptly at five the sitting was resumed and the jury having arrived at a decision were brought in. They found Payu not guilty and Nappa-Sousie guilty, recommending for mercy. Payu was thereupon discharged and Nappa-Sousie sentenced to two months at Fort Saskatchewan with hard labor. The prisoners have already undergone four months' confinement at the barracks. In sentencing Nappa-Sousie his lordship, through the interpreter, read him a lecture which, taken with the experience he has gone through, may do much to prevent further whetigo murders in the north. In brief his lordship said: We do not believe in your whetigo superstition. If an Indian is insane it means that he is sick, and there is no reason why he should kill him. The whetigo man medicine man who will cure him, take care of him, and if any more Indians turn whetigo you are to tie them up, take care of them, and bring them to some settlement or police post where they will be taken charge of. The sentence you get this time is a short one, but if such a thing occurs again the penalty will not be so light. The arm of the law is long and if you or your people break the law, the arm will reach out for you and gather you in, even though you be at the north pole.

Nappa-Sousie received his lenient sentence with a crestfallen air and a lugubrious expression on his rather good-natured and simple countenance. On being discharged Payu lost no time in making himself scarce. During the progress of the case a well-deserved tribute was paid to Corp. Phillips of the N. W. M. F., Lesser Slave lake, for his prompt and efficient action in arresting these implicated.

On the case being concluded, J. Norris Jr., charged with cattle stealing, plead guilty and received three months with hard labor at the Fort, and a warning that should assist him in remaining honest in future.

OUT FROM DAWSON.

James Kennedy, of Edmonton, returned from Dawson on Friday night. Mr. Kennedy made the grand tour. He went in by way of the Liard and Pelly rivers and returned via St. Michael and Seattle. His journey was commenced on the 5th May, 1898, that being the day he and his partner, Jack Russell, also of Edmonton, left the Athabasca Landing for the North. They went down to Fort Simpson, tracked up the Liard, portaged their supplies over Hell Gate, dragged their boats through and wintered with about 100 others on the upper Liard, near Mud river. A number of the men who wintered there came overland from the Peace and struck the Liard at Mud river. Among these latter was A. D. Osborne, of Edmonton. All of the men who wintered on the Liard came through with scarcely any sickness or privations. Three or four deaths occurred from scurvy and one or two from drowning, but when asked as to the reports circulated by the Victoria Colonist and one or two other papers, of terrible suffering in that region, Mr. Mennealy only smiled and said they had heard of the reports, but had not seen any of the privations or suffering. All of the parties had plenty of grub with one or two exceptions and these exceptions were supplied by the H. B. Co. with enough to take them from post to post until they could get out. The only ones who suffered hardship, Mr. Mennealy stated, were those who should never have tried to go to Klondike. There were men on the river who when they started thought it terrible to have to sleep in a tent at night. The greater number of those who wintered on the Liard went out by Glenora and the others to Pelly Banks and down to Dawson. Messrs. Mennealy and Russell pulled out from their winter camp on the 16th March, hauling their outfit to the Pelly on toboggans. At the Pelly there were 40 men building boats to go down the river. They arrived in Dawson on the 1st of June. On the 3rd July Mr. Mennealy left for St. Michael and Cape Nome, but reports from the latter place were so discouraging that he went on out by steamer to Seattle and thence to Edmonton. John Russell is still in Dawson, but will probably come out shortly. There are thousands of idle men in Dawson simply walking the streets. When a river steamer arrives there are 300 or 400 men waiting to get a job at unloading it.

W. J. Graham, of Edmonton, is starting a brick yard in Dawson. Other Edmonton men met were Fred Robertson, S. McNeil, Wm. and Mel. Matheson, and Geo. Purches at Fort Yukon. A. H. Mogridge is managing a store at Fort Halkett.

RAIN.

One thing for which the present summer has been remarkable is its moistness. More rain has fallen to the square inch this summer than any other summer during the past ten years. While a dry summer is a thing to be avoided and a wet one is generally desirable, there is always a possibility of having too much of a good thing. It is not an occasional shower but a frequently recurring down-pour. Not such a rain as we would expect to have in this northern clime, but one such as we would expect to experience in the tropics where the heavens seem to open and the water comes down in sheets. In the early part of the season these rains brought joy to the settlers in the country around, as it was just what was needed to promote the growth of grain and roots. In this it succeeded splendidly and crops have had no damage. The only inconvenience so far caused by the continual moisture is to those who have commenced haying. If the wet weather continues, however, it may interfere with the ripening of the crops and on that account, as well as for the sake of the travelling public, it is to be hoped that the elements will change the tenor of their ways.

TO PREVENT MANGE.

With a view to preventing the spread of mange among cattle, regulations have been passed by the Dominion government making it unlawful for any person to have in his possession any animal affected with the disease without treating it with some remedy. No animal so affected or in contact with any other animal affected shall be removed from any place where it is confined without an order from an authorized inspector. All sheds, etc., used by animals must be scrubbed with hot water and carbolic acid, one pound to four gallons, and afterwards white washed with hot lime and chloride of lime. A place may be fixed on by a veterinary surgeon for the isolation of any animal affected, and there such animal may be slaughtered if necessary.

RED DEER.

Rev. Leo Gaetz, D. D., president of the Manitoba and Northwest Methodist Conference, is here visiting members of his family, and will preach in the Methodist church Sunday next 13th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Greene returned Wednesday from the south where they have been spending a holiday at Banff and other points. While away Mr. Greene attended the high court of the N. W. T., I. O. F. He was re-elected as legal adviser of the order for the Territories.

Miss Wardrobe of Chicago is the guest of Mrs. Burch, Ross Avenue.

W. S. Anderson has moved into his new house, Nanton Avenue.

S. Wilson and J. Brindle have taken in the races at Calgary.

We regret to learn that John H. Wright intends to take his departure in a few days for Chicago where he has secured a very remunerative position in a large mercantile concern. During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Wright have secured a host of friends who will be sorry to have them leave here. We wish them every success in their future home.

Complications have arisen with the party operating the stone quarry and parties requiring stone. It looks as if trouble may arise before the matter is properly adjusted. It is one thing for a man to know when he has a good thing and another for him to know how to make the best of it.

Death has recently made a heavy draft on the people of Red Deer. Last week Mrs. A. E. Roberts passed away very suddenly at Calgary after an illness of a few days. Mrs. Roberts was out from England but a few months and during her stay here made many friends. Mr. Roberts has our sincere sympathy in his loss.

On Saturday night last William Scott, jr., was struck with lightning and instantly killed. The deceased was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott and the chief support of the aged couple. They came here in the spring of 1892 from Tama County, Iowa and since then have been respected by all who met them. The young man was a general favorite among a host of acquaintances and will be greatly missed by parents and friends. The entire community extend to the sorrowing parents their sympathy in their great loss.

Never before has there been so fine a prospect for an immense crop of grain and farm produce as the present year, already much of the grain is well headed out and some will be out next week if weather permits. The acreage has been greatly increased over last year and unless the many rains which we have had recently prevent a proper harvest the crop for this year will surpass any former years in yield and quality. So far frost has not appeared and only in a small area there has been any damage by hailstorms.

A Masonic lodge will be opened here on the 4th September. The new lodge starts with a good membership and an enthusiasm which promises success. The same day the corner stone of St. Luke's church will be laid with grand Masonic honors. Already many prominent masons have signified their intentions to be present and take part in the ceremonies. All the lodges of Alberta will be invited and an excursion from Calgary will come up. It is expected that this will be the largest gathering of the craft at any time in the Territories.

August 11th, '99.

AGRICOLA.

Black-leg is still claiming its victims amongst cattle here. Almost all intelligent farmers have had their cattle vaccinated but a few of those who persistently refuse to keep up with the progress of the times still invite the disease by refusing or neglecting to vaccinate young cattle. Of 135 vaccinated in this settlement this season, one only has died and there is no actual proof that it died of black-leg as it had been dead some time when discovered. Replying to a letter of enquiry addressed to Mr. C. Peterson, dep. commissioner of agriculture, Regina, that gentleman writes as follows: "It would save thousands of dollars to this country if every stock holder would take the precautionary measures rendered possible through the discovery of the Pasteur vaccination and I sincerely trust you will meet with success in establishing this remedy for black-leg in the Northwest Territories."

A new bridge is to be erected on the boundary line between township 53, range 22, and township 53, range 23 and not before it is needed as the old one has collapsed entirely, the foundations having been built with balm timber with the bark on, which rots in a very short time, the department of public works as administered by J. S. Dennis is looking after the expenditure of public money in a very satisfactory manner and it is not likely that we shall have any more bridges built with foundations made of balm or any other quickly perishable timber.
